Your goods are protected every step of the way while in our care with sophisticated, technology-based security systems.

Our people as well as our technology and our systems contribute to our performance. AirRoad is characterised by our loyal, experienced staff many of whom have been with us since inception. While we are big enough to meet your supply chain needs, we are small enough to take a personal approach to your business needs.

Security at AirRoad

Your goods are protected every step of the way while in our care, with sophisticated, technology-based security systems at our sites and in our vehicles. While our actual freight loss is one in ten thousand items carried*, none the less, we are continuously striving to reduce losses to zero.

When goods are at AirRoad's lock-down sites, they are protected with electronic security monitoring 24/7, live CCTV, on-site guards and back to base alarm systems.

AirRoad's Track and Trace system monitors every item in our care with barcode scanning at major points in the supply chain, from pickup to final delivery. This, in turn, is connected to our depot surveillance system.

All of the linehaul vehicles in our fleet are fitted with satellite tracking so that we can pinpoint their location at any time. Our strict protocols require that goods are never released without a proof of delivery signature, which can then be viewed and verified online.

AirRoad maintains the highest security standards across our distribution network and is trusted by the world's leading businesses to deliver their goods in full and on time.

We continually review and enhance our security systems to ensure that all possible measures are in place to Deliver Certainty to our clients.
